REPORT OF PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING

For The Year Ending December 31, 1964

The public health nurse, a member of the staff of the Division of Public Health Nursing, provides public health nursing services to individuals, families and to the community as a whole.

These services include:

1. Nursing care of the sick.
2. Counseling the patient or family in making and carrying out his or its own plan for meeting individual or family health problems.
3. Assisting the physician in physical examinations, and immunizations.
4. Helping to control social, physical and personal hazards within the environment whether it be at home, school or work.
5. Promotion of understanding and full utilization of other members of the health team and the community through referral and reporting.

A summary of services in your town is as follows:

Twenty-three home visits were made to give nursing care and carry out the physician's orders, give emotional support and guidance, help analyze individual and family needs, and assist in working out an acceptable plan to meet these needs.

A total of thirty-eight infants and pre-school children attended the three Child Health Conferences. Immunizations and physical examinations were given by D. F. Russell, M.D.

Twenty-eight school children were given physical examinations and any children found to have physical defects were referred to family physicians and/or various clinic services.

Fifty-three children were administered immunizations for protection against diphtheria, tetanus, poliomyelitis and smallpox. Hearing and vision retests were done by the nurse as requested by the teacher or parents; the family was notified when the results fell below normal; assistance and guidance were given to secure further diagnosis and treatment.

All beginners and seventh grade pupils were given the opportunity to have the tuberculin skin test. This is now an on-going activity in the school health service recommended by the State Department of Health and Welfare and the State Department of Education. The ultimate purpose of the tuberculin testing program is the eradication of tuberculosis by discovering tuberculosis early, treating the infected individual, finding the source of infection and taking whatever measures are necessary to prevent further infection. There were no reactions to the tests.

Appreciation is expressed to all in the community who have helped in the progress and success of the program.

Respectfully submitted,

ROWENA M. DOW

Public Health Nurse

EDUCATION

Report of Superintendent of Schools

To the Superintending School Committee and the Citizens of the Town of Wales:

In accordance with the requirements of law and custom, I present to you at this time my THIRD annual report as your Superintendent of Schools.

Let's look at education on the two levels that we at the local level are presently concerned about: Elementary and Secondary Education. What is the aim of education at each of these levels? How can the quality of education be measured?

Elementary schools include junior-primary and grades one through eight. Their main purpose is to meet the needs of children to learn to live with other people, to learn about the world around them, and to learn how to read, speak, write and figure. Emotional and social growth are also emphasized.

Secondary schools include grades nine through twelve. The secondary school's aim is to increase the students' proficiency in communication, computation, and social skills and to develop the attitudes and values needed for taking his place as a citizen. The basic understandings taught include the worth of the individual, the principles of freedom, the ideals of democracy, and the responsibilities of citizenship in a free world.

Among the essential conditions determining the quality of education at the levels mentioned, the following are particularly important:

1. Well qualified teachers with academic training and with high standards of speaking, writing, and listening skills.
2. Adequate buildings, safe and suited to current needs.
3. Modern materials and equipment to perform more effective teaching.

4. Varied programs to meet different abilities to learn.
5. Loyalty of professional staff and support of the people.

Support by the people is essential to any educational system. It has often been stated that people get just about what they want for schools. This consequence results not only from the financial support that they provide but also from their attitude toward education. If parents in the presence of their children complain about the way the schools are run, it should be no surprise when the children fail to place a high value on their school life. Many of the values and ideals of young people are built in the home. Parents have a responsibility for ingraining in youth a seriousness of purpose toward acquiring education.

The school system can nurture public support by keeping the public informed of its problems, needs, and accomplishments. People who consult with the school officials and get all the facts about situations and issues are better equipped to form opinions than those who jump to conclusions.

The superintending school committee and the citizens of Wales should be very grateful to the dedicated services we receive from the three teachers at the Central School. Some thought should be given to the elimination of three grades in a classroom. It is impossible for a teacher to give the needed attention to youngsters in lower elementary grades when she has more than twenty-five pupils in a classroom.

It might be wise to consider sending grades seven and eight out of town on a tuition basis. This would alleviate some of the problems that now exist. This would also lower the teacher-pupil ratio and eliminate three grades in a room, or the School District Trustees could consider the feasibility of adding a classroom.

In closing I wish to thank the citizens of Wales who have devoted their time and energy toward the improvement of the Wales Central School. I wish to express my sincere thanks to a conscientious and understanding school committee and finally a word of praise to Mrs. Gardner, school union secretary and to the principal, Mr. Littlefield and his staff, Mrs. Brownell and Mrs. Edgecomb who are the heart of our school system.

Respectfully submitted,

JOSEPH PECORARO
